

Overview:

A land of contrasts and extremes, Southern Africa offers exceptional photographic opportunities. With a wide variety of potential subjects and conditions ranging from spectacular scenery, colourful locals and exhilarating wildlife encounters South Africa is a dream destination for a photography holiday.

While many visitors enjoy taking snapshots on holiday, some like to take their passion a bit further. On request we can organise a specialist photographic guide to accompany your private escorted holiday or we can advise you on the best locations for that elusive shot you have been seeking.

We have partnered with suppliers specialising in photographic tours of South Africa and Botswana that cater for photographers of all levels of ability and experience. All of the tours are conducted in private vehicles and led by qualified photo guides with extensive knowledge of their surrounding area as well as the 'where and when' to take the best pictures.

Whether you are a complete beginner or experienced pro we will design your perfect day trip or extended tour, so you will leave with fantastic memories and plenty of beautiful images.

Suggested photographic day tours in Cape Town include the South Peninsula tour, townships and winelands tour as well as the Kirstenbosch Gardens and Cape Malay cookery class. Of you do not have your own camera we can supply one!

In Botswana we can recommend tours that can be as short as one day or stretch over three weeks. The photo safaris are focused on wildlife, birding, and both land and water-based photographic environments. You will have the opportunity to visit some of Botswana's most iconic photographic destinations such as the Chobe National Park, the Chobe River and the Okavango Delta.
